

HOORAY FOR HANDWASHING

The Soap and Detergent Association

This is Sudsy. And Soapy, too. They live at your sink and wait for you. One day, Soapy and Sudsy were sad. They hoped someone would visit them, but no one had.

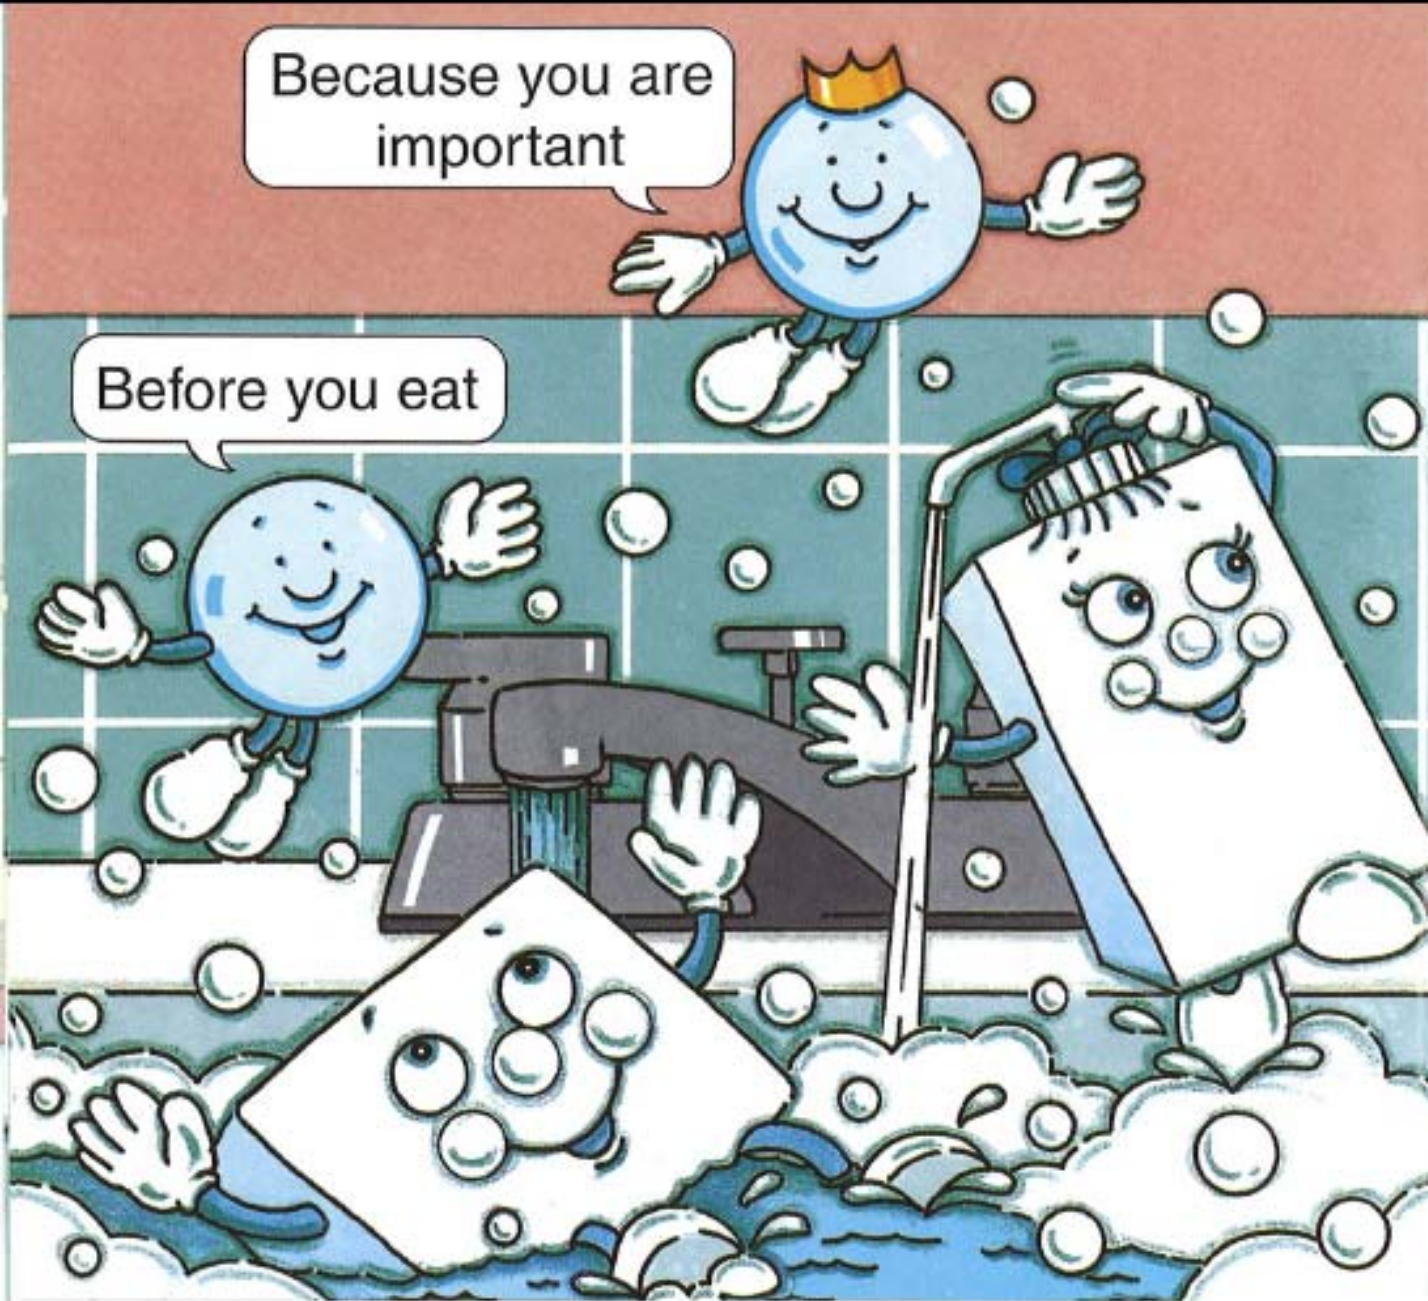

"Our friends are outside, playing," said Sudsy, "Look!"

Soapy and Sudsy saw Alex flying a kite. Josh and Maria were playing in the sandbox. Sarah and Jamal were playing with Mi-Lin's new puppy.

"Our friends need to wash their hands when they come in," said Soapy.
"It will help keep them clean and healthy!"

"I hope they remember," said Sudsy.

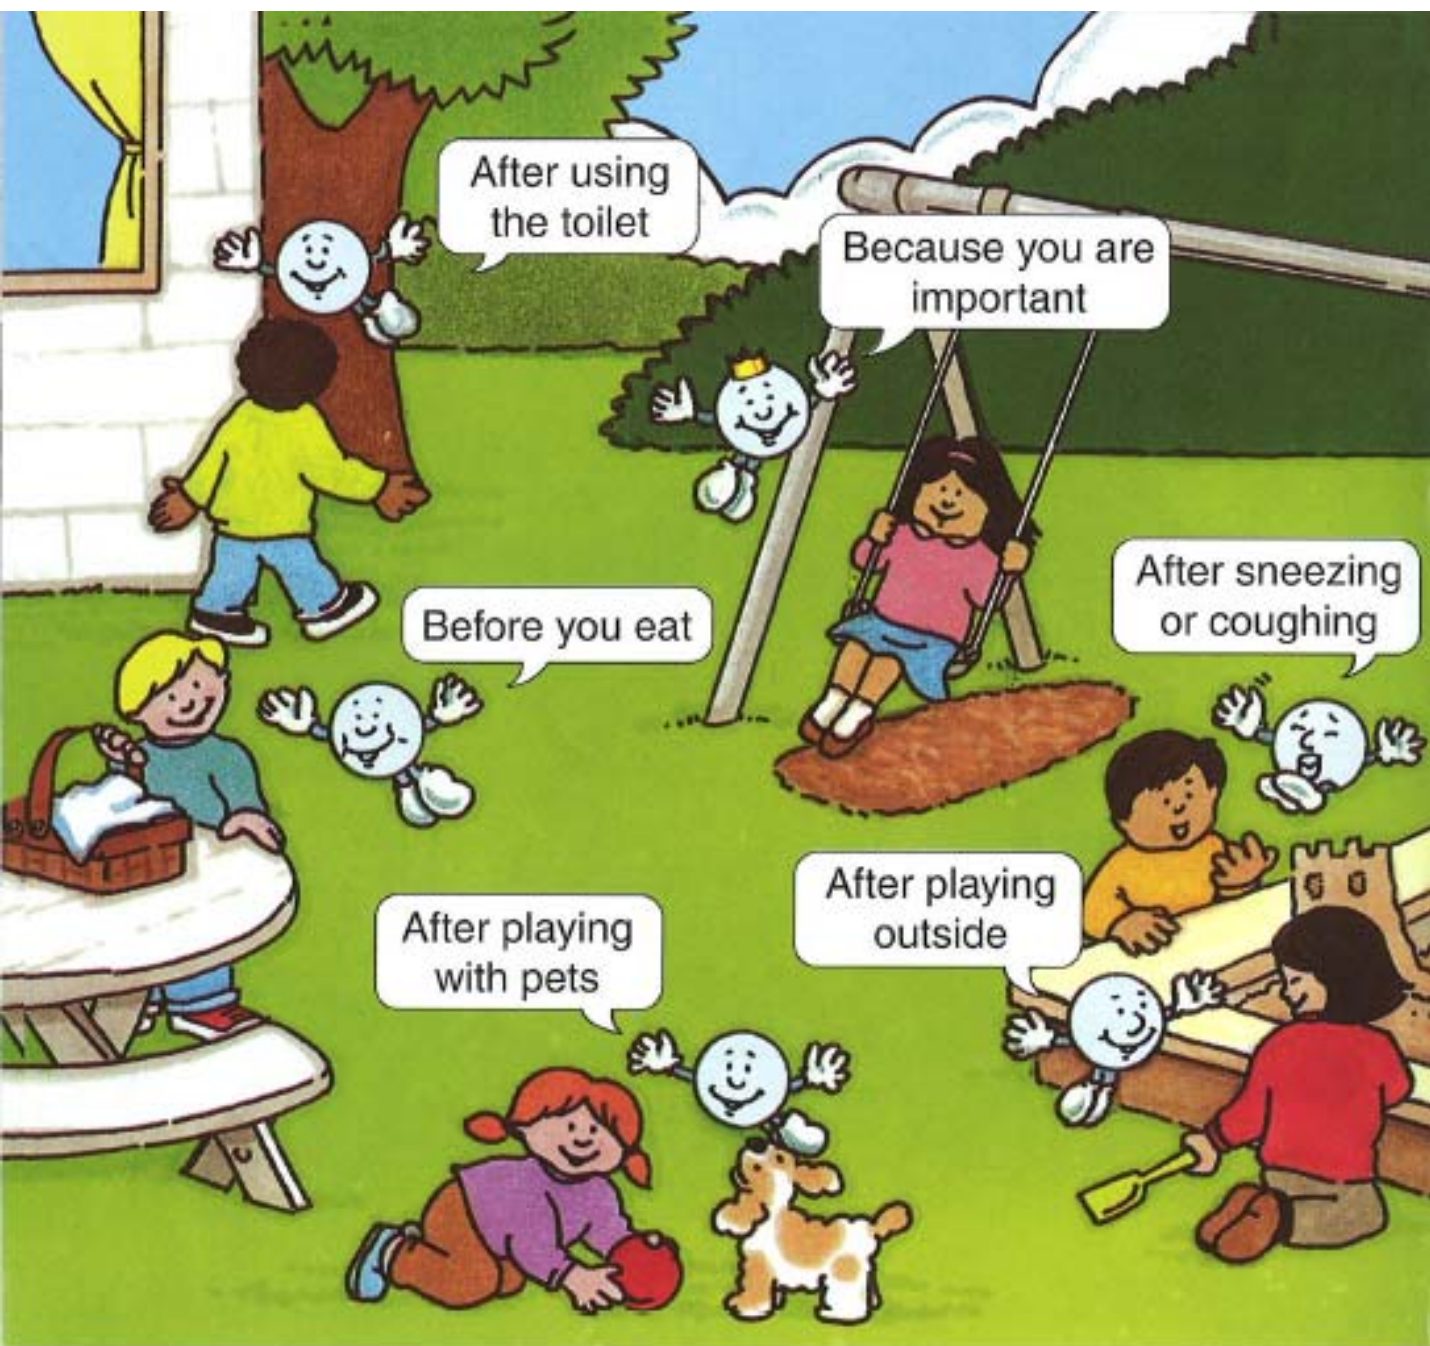

"I have an idea," said Soapy, smiling.

Soapy and Sudsy turned on the water. Just a little cold and just a little hot to make the water nice and warm. The best kind for making bubbles!

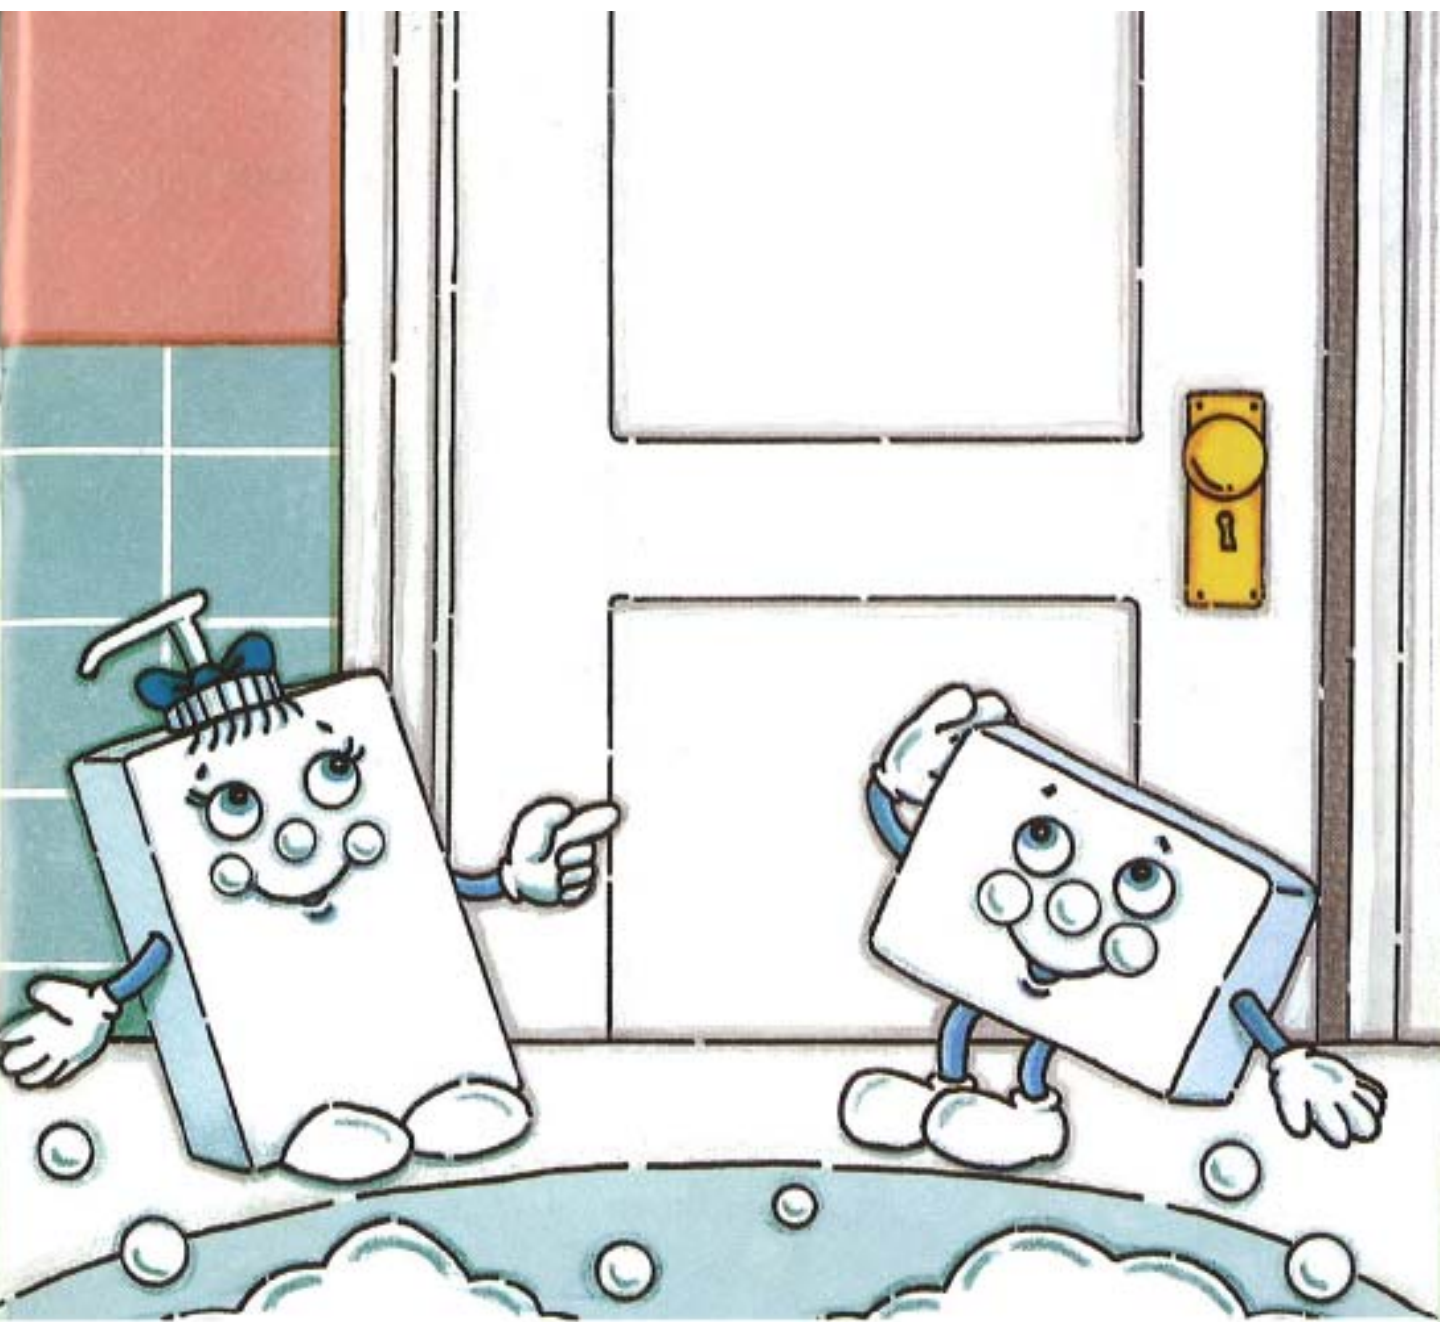

Then they splished and splashed and made lots and lots of bubbles. They gave each bubble a special message to help their freinds remember to wash their hands.

"Bubbles, bubbles, don't be slow!
To our friends you must go!" said Soapy and Sudsy.

And they sang a little song, too.

“Remember, remember,
Remember, don't forget,
Follow Soapy and Sudsy's rules,
Stay as healthy as you can get.”

"I think they're coming," said Soapy. They listened and heard footsteps and laughing.

Suddenly, the door opened!

“Hooray,” said Sudsy, “our friends have come to wash their hands.”

“Hooray for clean hands!” said the children. “Hooray! Hooray!”
